SECOND TERM FIRST TEST

Text: girls' education in Africa

All the children have the right to education. However, in Africa, many parents still refuse to send their daughters to schools. The main reason is ignorance. Many parents think that the place of women is at home to learn how to take care of a family, to do the housework and to “produce” children. Some parents believe that when a girl is educated, she will reject traditions. For example, she may oppose forced marriage.

We need to sensitize our parents about the benefits of education. When a girl or a woman is educated, she can easily contribute to her family, society and country's social and economic development.
