The life of Harriet Tubman as a slave

Harriet Tubman was a slave. She was born in southern USA in 1820. When she was a young girl, Harriet worked as a servant in her owner's house. She was a rebel who didn't like taking orders, so her owner sent her to work in the cotton fields. The work was hard, the hours were long, and to make matters, the slaves were often beaten and whipped.

While she worked in the fields, Harriet dreamed of freedom. There was no slavery in the north of the country, but could she get there? The journey to the north and freedom. In the north Harriet worked as a cook and a dressmaker. Although she was free. She thought of her family and friends in the south who were not free. So she decided to help other slaves to escape. She helped her parent, her sisters and her two brothers to get to the north. And she helped many more slaves, over 300 in all.
